The screenshot shows a Microsoft Word document titled "ebooks_batch_recipe_2010_2.docx". The ribbon includes tabs like Home, Insert, Layout, References, Mailings, Review, and Developer. The main body of the document contains the following text:

Please begin by reviewing the field count; there should be an equal number of LDR fields, 050, 245, 260, 300 and 856. The field count is useful for noticing any oddities, such as not enough 050 fields. Then have a look at a couple of the existing records in the catalogue to see what notes, added entries, series, etc. are in those records and aim for consistency, to see what notes, added entries, series, etc. are in those records and aim for consistency with past practice for that vendor.

- ▶ R2 report (Study of the North American MARC records marketplace, R2 Consulting)

“Cataloguers have an almost unstoppable urge to improve, tweak, customize and “localize” national-level records; redundant work is still widespread”

- ▶ Connie McGuire, Vicki Dillon (Univ. Michigan)

“Corrections [to records] are not made when the errors do not affect access”

Evaluating records

- ▶ Quality issues: accuracy, completeness
- ▶ Compatibility issues: display of diacritics
- ▶ Access issues: Do the records add access value to the resources described?
- ▶ Workload issues: how much editing/updating will be required? How will it be accomplished and who will do it?
